When a customer does not want a full scale turnkey solution or outsourcing, it may choose to bring in our experts as consultants to fulfill specialized roles in conjunction with their own IT team. Consultants bring in a high level of system and/or business expertise, which may not be available internally within an organization and strategically make a great difference between the success or failure of a project.

Ever since our inception in 1993, we have been offering Information Technology specialists with the most current state of the art skills that are needed to meet our client's requirements and their dynamic information technology environments. Our consultants have had an immaculate and an impeccable record of completing all projects successfully through technical expertise that encompasses a broad range of system development skills; from concept definition to systems development to integration, testing and implementation. Universal System Technologies recognizes that building and sustaining a strong project team is a major factor in the success of any engagement. Our consultants come in different roles like System Analysts, Programmer Analysts, Database Administrators, Project Managers, Network Administrators, Support Analysts, Web Developers, Systems Administrators, QA Testers, Business Analysts, Operations Analysts, Help Desk Analysts and Information Architects. We have a consultant to fill up virtually any IT role.

Our consultants offer the following advantages:

 • Expertise – Our consultants have extensive technical and/functional expertise
 • Experience – Our consultants have diversified and relevant industry experience
 • Education – Our consultants have advanced educational qualifications. Almost every body has a Bachelor's degree in Engineering/Computer Science with many of   them having Master's and Doctorate degrees
 • Goal Oriented – Our consultants are highly focused on achieving results within the prescribed time and budget
 • Competitive Rates – Our consulting rates are very reasonable compared to the Big 5 Consulting
 • Quality – Our consultants deliver excellent quality and customer satisfaction
 • People Skills – Our consultants not only are technical or functional experts but they are friendly and courteous professionals with high level of people skills, which   we believe is essential to any successful consulting engagement.
